Curriculum Committee Minutes

Thursday April 26, 2001

12:30 – 2 pm

Present: R. Nigro (Chair), E. Giardino, F. T. Nguyen, C. Sheahan, B. Millard, S. DeTurk, M. Soven, J. Seltzer, G. Bruce, P. Brazina, Z. Wolf

Minutes

Review Minutes 3/29/2001. Minutes approved as written. (7 – Y, 1 – Abstain)

Proposal for Geology Course: Principles of Hydrogeology

Dr. Millard introduced the history of the course as it has been “in the pipeline” for a while and offered as an evening course. The course is a critical part of the environmental program. Course is 4 credits and identified as Geology 307. It will be required when approved. There is an expected market for the course among private firms that deal with hydrogeology.

Motion to approve the course: Yes – 8; No – 0; Abstain – 1 Motion approved.

Proposal for Communication 180

The Communications Department proposed Com 180 as a special course in Public Speaking that its majors take during sophomore year. Communication majors would take Com 180 instead of Com 150. Dr. Brooks Aylor described that Com 180 will connect public speaking to other courses in the Communication program. Dr. Millard stated that the Arts & Sciences Curriculum Committee supported the proposal and that Com 180 would be a better building block for the communications major.

Dr. M. Soven expressed concern about taking a large block of students (Communication majors) out of the general education course load of the core and the effect this has on scheduling doubles – as there would be fewer taking Com 150. A lively discussion ensued concerning issues related to general education courses, and the effect of departments developing department specific courses that may change the integrity of the core and the courses that make up the core and doubles. Dr. Nigro suggested that the committee ponder the questions of what ought to be the relationship between general education and the major, and what the fundamental essence of general education are.

The concerns regarding the effect of excluding a large number of students from a core course that is a major component of the doubles courses were not able to be resolved at this meeting. Dr. Seltzer suggested the committee hear first from the registrar regarding the matter and Dr. Nigro suggested that the committee leave this question open for further discussion at a later time in the coming academic year.

Therefore, a motion was made and seconded to table the request regarding Com 180 until Fall 2001. Yes – 8; No – 1; Abstain – 0

Old Business

Dr. Nigro stated the need to schedule a Curriculum Committee meeting within the next month to discuss the “homework” the committee has done.

Meeting adjourned at 2 pm.

A Collection Worth Celebrating

La Salle University Art Museum's 25th anniversary exhibition of works on paper isn't part of the citywide print festival (it includes drawings and watercolors).

But it's worth a visit for three reasons: It features a number of splendid prints, a Rembrandt etching and a Cézanne lithograph among them, it represents an exemplary model of art collecting with limited resources, and it serves as a handsome introduction to this compact gem of a museum.

Since 1976, founding director Brother Daniel Burke and curator Caroline Wistar have built up the works on paper portion of the museum's collection to about 3,700 prints and 400 drawings.

They achieved this through judicious purchase, trading up when they had the opportunity, and with numerous gifts of art and money from patrons the museum calls its "art angels."

The exhibition of 41 works, primarily European and American, begins with Albrecht Dürer (a woodcut called Christ in Limbo, made in 1510) and finishes with Fernand Léger (a color screen-print, Vase Bleu, made in 1951).

The exhibition includes a generous representation of contemporary work, by artists such as Richard Estes, Jules Olitski, Peter Milton and Philadelphia John F. Dowell.

Its chronological and stylistic range opens a window on an estimable teaching collection assembled with an eye to covering major developments in Western art — an ambitious program, but one that the museum has fulfilled reasonably well through steady, measured development.

Besides the prints, the show is rich in fine drawings and watercolors, particularly a pen-and-ink still life by Henri Matisse; a sumptuous male figure in black chalk by Cecilia Beaux, the famous Philadelphia portraitist; a pencil study by Edgar Degas for a painting of young Spartans; and a luminous watercolor landscape by the English artist John "Warwick" Smith.

The museum's galleries on the lower level of Olney Hall are especially hospitable to this show of mostly small-scale work. Their quiet, contemplative ambience is perfectly suited to perusal of art full of detail and nuance.

The works on paper exhibition is paired with a selection of English Bibles from the university's Susan Dunleavy collection.

The exhibits include a first edition of the King James Bible, published in London in 1611 and 1613; a facsimile of the 1455 Gutenberg Bible, and a magnificent Bible published last year by Arion Press of San Francisco, printed by hand using movable type.
